SECURE YOUR SPACE.

The Pavilion is Being Rapidly Appropriated by Exhibitors.

Chas. Meder is now engaged in preparing the pavilion for the exhibition. Two immense tables have been built 40 feet long by 5½ wide. One will be glass-covered and is to contain ladies' fancy work and the other is set aside for fruit and vegetables, protected from the sampling public by wire screens.

This will be in the center of the hall down stairs.

Along the sides and around the pillars the merchants will have their displays.

Up stairs will be devoted to the arts and sciences. A long 4-inch iron rod entirely around next the ceiling, affords plenty of opportunity for picture hanging.

No wires will be stretched across the balcony, as the material upon them would throw shadows underneath from the electric lights.

A few Reno rustlers want to put Eastern mowing machines on exhibition, but people in this district must be considered first, as all available space is being consumed.

Every one thought the pavilion was "amplly sufficient" to accommodate everything, but it will be jammed full.

Up to date the following business men have decided to make exhibits:

Vonderhyde & Wood, mineral waters of all kinds.

W. D. Torreyson, carriage work.

Joe Platt, furnishing goods.

E. B. Rail, hardware, agricultural implements, etc.

E. Barclay, fruit.

John G. Fox, jewelry and sporting goods.

Geo. C. Thaxter, drugs and fancy goods.

Abe Cohn, gents furnishing goods.

Jacob Muller, hardware.

E. Burlington, shoes.

Cagwin & Noteware, fancy goods and frames.

E. James, studies in art.

L. H. Bell, fancy groceries etc.

A. C. Hofer & Bros., dry goods.

A. E. Harris, drugs and fancy goods.

M. Cohn, farm products.

P. Hiedenger, drugs.

Geo. Kitzmeyer, furniture.

Geo. Vonderhyde, harness and saddles.

APPEAL OFFICE, Job work.

Sam Davis—farm produce without and with irrigation.

The above is only a list of those who have thus far decided, many others being unsettled in the matter.

Some Virginia business men will be with us and if the next fair is like this one we will have to put a couple of ells on the pavilion. Every rancher within the boundaries of the District intends to exhibit, but the APPEAL is unable at present to secure the names.

J. Vick, the well known seedman of Rochester, N. Y., has suspended. The liabilities are about $200,000. The assets may cover the indebtedness. Vick didn't advertise last year which probably accounts for his failure.

Thought He Had 'Em.

A very funny incident is occasionally told by Lyman Frisbie on himself. He is authority for the following:

Some time ago Lyman indulged in a camping trip around the mountain lakes in company with a few others on pleasure bent.

Frisbie had gained considerable renown as a hunter, having taken three booby prizes in a progressive clay pigeon match, so he took along his trusty maul-loading shotgun, assuring the party that he would keep them in fresh meat.

The first day out Lyman shouldered his rusty weapon and went after some game for supper, going a mile or two from camp.

In about an hour something that looked like Frisbie was seen coming over the hill on the dead jump. He was hatless, gunless, gameless and almost breathless.

When he got within hailing distance somebody yelled:

"What are you runnin' for?"

By this time Lyman was close enough to talk.

"Kill him," he shouted.

"Kill what," was asked, "can't see anything."

"Don't ye hear him, you d—fools?"

"Hear what?" they asked eagerly.

"That rattlesnake?" shouted

Frisbie as loud as he could with what little breath he had left, as he ran into the crowd.

Then they realized the situation: Lyman had the delirium tremens, of course, and they guessed they would have to tie him down until he got rational.

Poor Frisbie expostulated and tried to explain, called them blooming idiots, said he hadn't touched a drop of liquor of any kind for a week, said he didn't see the snake but knew it must have been over fifteen feet long, and judging by the noise it made must have had three sets of rattles and any number of buttons.

But they just merely put a gag in his mouth to keep back his insane ravings, told him they were friends of his and wouldn't let the snake hurt him; they bathed his head with cold water, put mustard plasters on his feet, etc.

Finally Lyman concluded that the sooner he quieted down the better. He was carefully nursed all that night, however, and never received so much tender care in his life for so little money.

They let him up in the morning, after putting the whiskey under lock and key. They had all agreed to humor Lyman in case he made any allusion to the matter, and so whenever Frisbie opened up the subject they told him not to worry as they had killed the snake and everything was all right.

His hat and gun were found nearly two miles from camp and returned to him.

The whole thing leaked out in a few days, when he started hunting again. Somebody tossed him his hunting coat and Frisbie heard, coming from one of the pockets, that same rattle. He dodged the coat, and when it hit the ground he turned loose both barrels into it, remarking that he guessed that rattlesnake had rattled his obituary.

Then the coat was carefully examined, and it was discovered that a little innocent-looking box of percussion caps had caused all the trouble, having imitated a rattlesnake to perfection. Frisbie estimates that he smashed all previous records for a mile and three-quarters when he heard that rattle the first time.

The Reno Shooting.

Officer Nash, of Reno, was attracted by a row in that city night before last, and went to the scene of trouble in which Ortiz, a Mexican, was a leading feature. Just before reaching there shooting commenced, so he hurried up, and in attempting to arrest Ortiz, was shot in the right groin. During the shooting Tom Welch was shot in the buttock. Nash's wound is serious, and recovery is doubtful. The town is greatly excited, and there was strong talk of lynching Ortiz last night.

The wheels of the renomination train rattled and roared but Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

The patter of the Vermont rain Was one unending Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

The Cape May surf it roared like Cain And all it said was Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

From Oregon to down-East Maine, One voice, one cry of Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

One word of woe, one word of bane, One shout of sorrow, Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

There is no turning this lane, This road of ruin, Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

O, weary weight, O, endless chain, That I must drag of Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

O, song inapt and tune inane, This never-ending Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

If I were deaf it were great gain, So might I 'scape this Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

The cry it waxes, and I wane, Droop, die, drop out at Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

By day and night it gives me pain, This fiendish yell of Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

Forever rising vast, immense, Uncarthy yells of Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

In what retreat for the insane Shall I be safe from Blaine, Blaine, Blaine!

An installment of 5 boxes, 700 pounds of butter, from the Carson Valley Creamery went below last night. The amount will be increased daily from now on.

There is no Secret

About your buying shoes to advantage. You may not know any more about the quality of leather than you do about a lost comet but that is no reason why you should get "stuck." Either you get your money's worth or you don't and if you don't is your own fault. We are in the shoe business because we happen to know something about shoes and leather. It is "bread and butter" to us, therefore we make it a STUDY. Of the knowledge you get as much benefit as though you possessed it yourself for we place it entirely in your disposal and if you think that other houses can quote lower prices than we do, come and look at the goods and prices. We will put our time against yours and we feel confident that the result will be a mutual benefit.
